

CodeSandbox

Problem

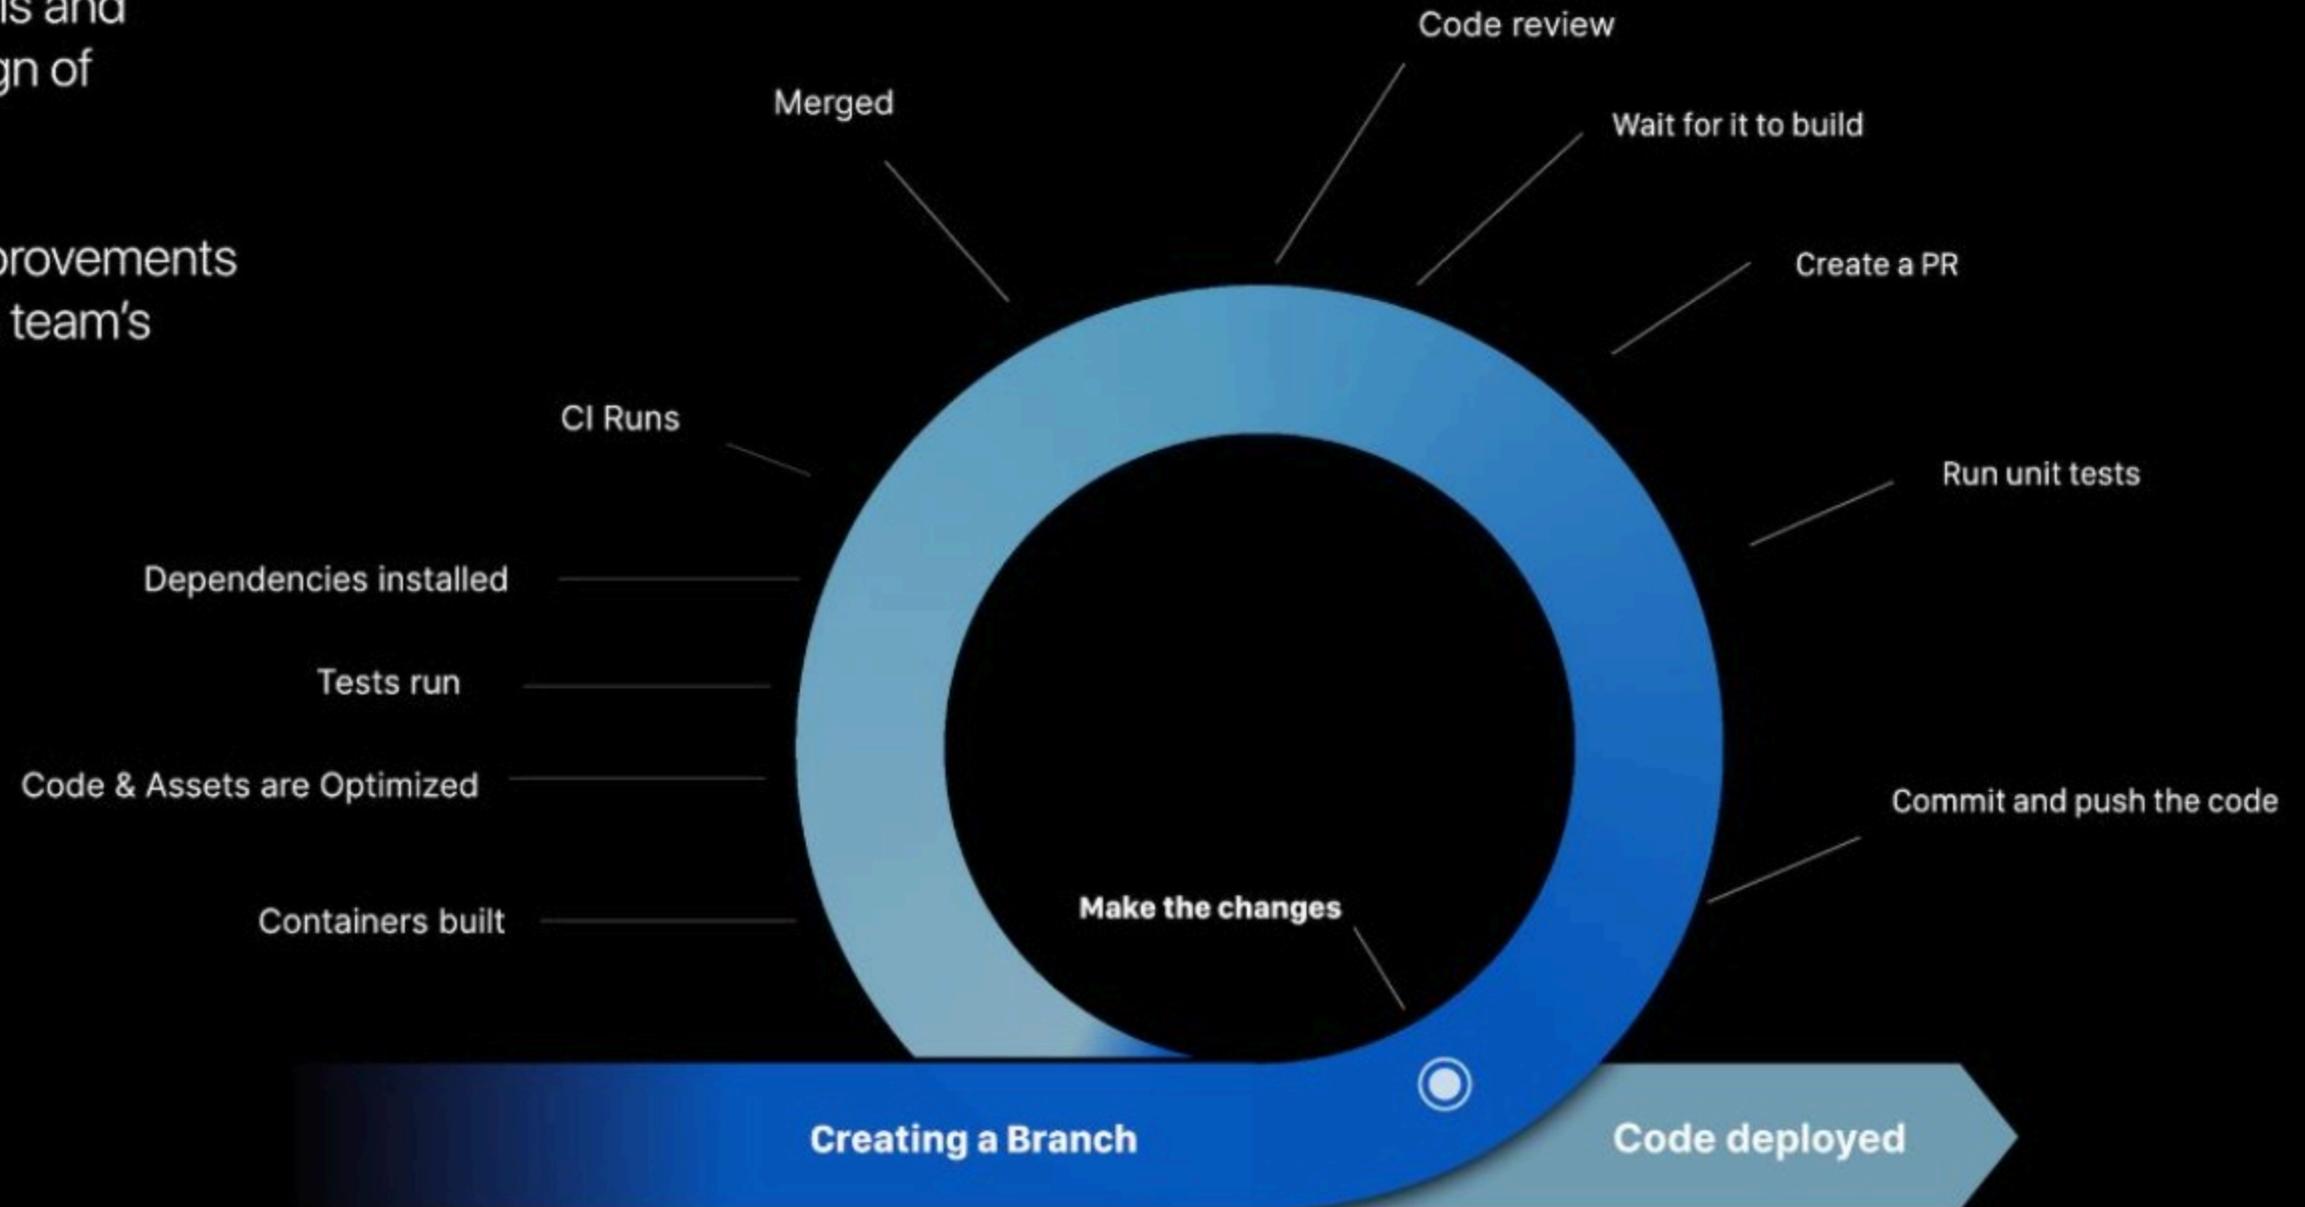

Developers are building the future. They're the driving force behind all modern companies because software is at the heart of how fast a company can move, grow, and adapt.

But dev environments are getting more complex, and teams increasingly distributed.

Web Development is fragmented

We're amid an explosion in tools and technologies that shows no sign of stopping.

These provide incremental improvements but add complexity and slow a team's velocity.

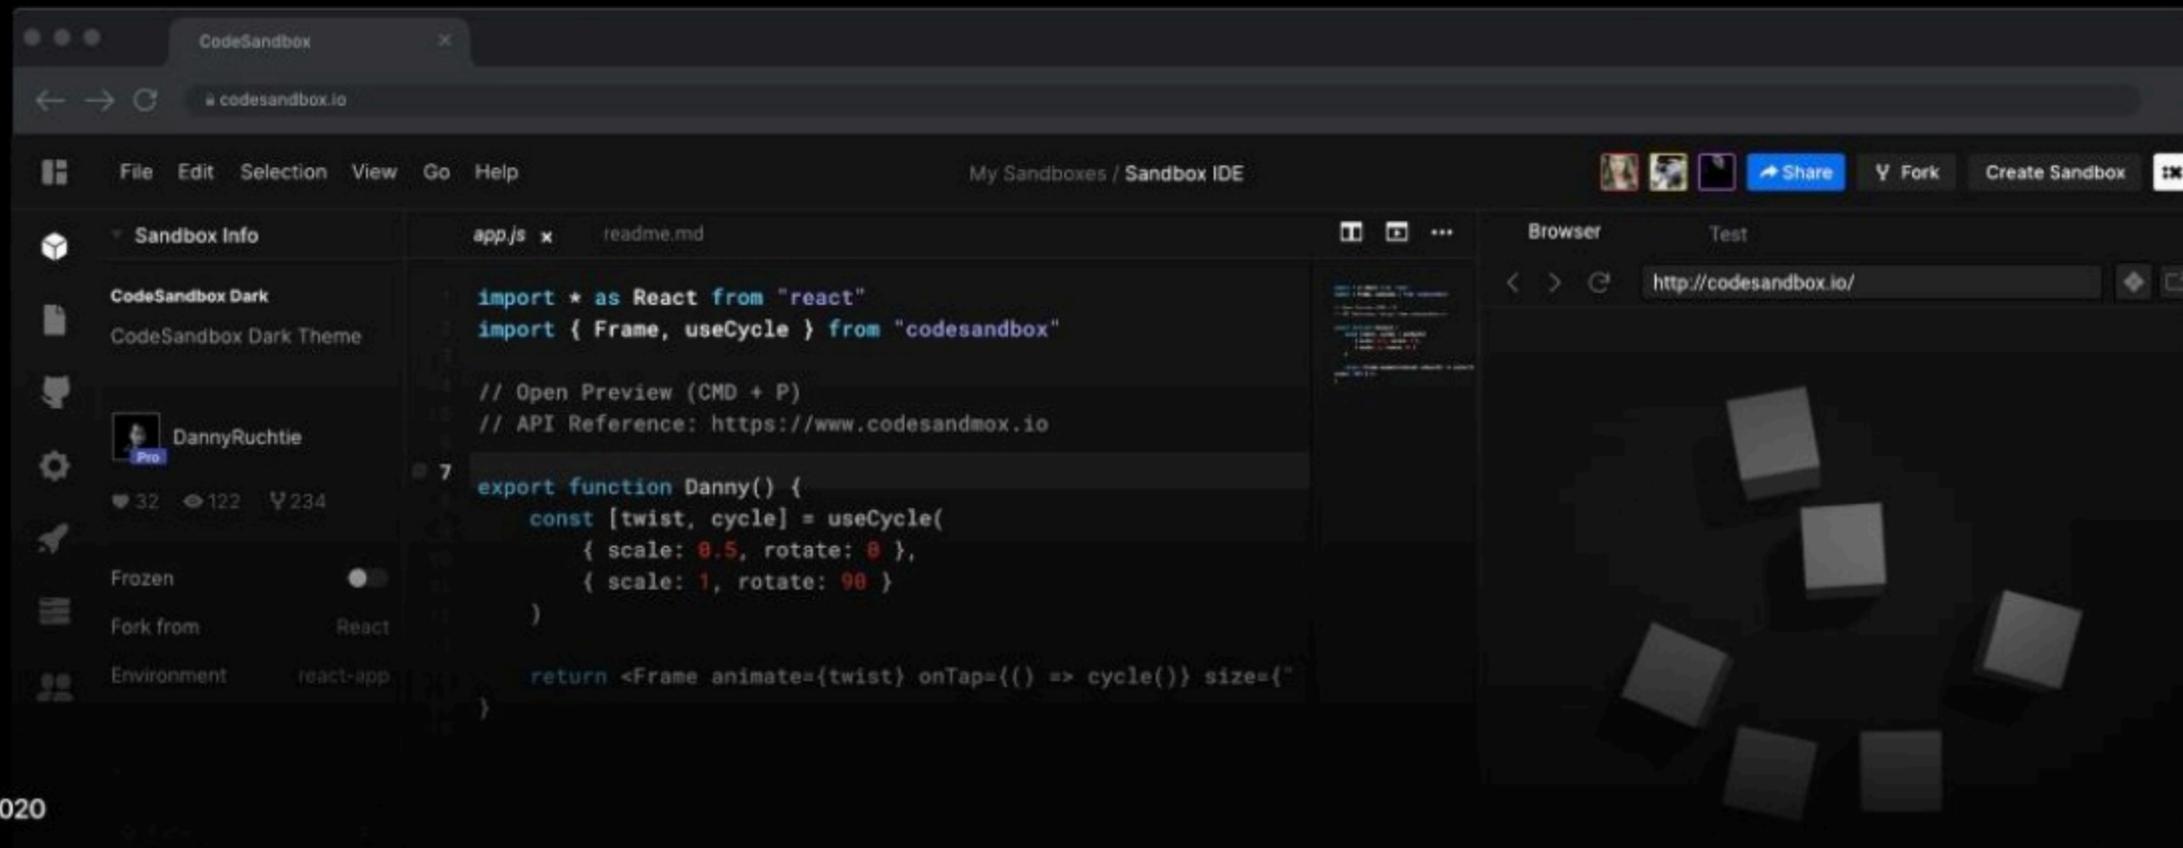

Collaborating on code is hard

Web development tooling is built around programming being a solo pursuit, with individuals writing code locally.

In reality, we rarely code by ourselves. We work in teams and they are increasingly distributed. More teams are embracing remote work, and software developers are leading the charge.

CodeSandbox

An integrated development platform that makes development collaborative, fast, and accessible for everyone.

Built to be fast, accessible, and collaborative

We're creating the best tool for product teams to collaborate and build web apps quickly.

Built for community

I'm obsessed with @codesandboxapp's GitHub import feature!! 🥰 One click and you can convert a repo (or its directories) to a CodeSandbox that automatically stays up to date w/ the latest commits. codesandbox.io/s/github

Can I just say that @codesandbox is the best thing that has happened to OSS maintainers? 👍 It kinda feels like cheating when you get an issue with a sandbox where it can be easily reproduced 🤪 Makes fixing them so much easier 🙌👍

I ❤️ @codesandboxapp.

Communicating via GitHub issues is so much easier when you're exchanging runnable code samples.

I used to ask for "Code Sandbox (or similar)" when someone reports a bug. Recently I dropped the "or similar".

Okay – @codesandbox you rock!!! 🥰

I just tried if I could run the @Netlify cli inside of CodeSandbox and it just works. Three open ports available and tunneled using the CLI.

That is unbelievable good!!! 🎉

The result: A growing community of web developers

7.2M sandboxes created

Sandboxes created daily:
+250% in the last 12 months

Deeply rooted in the developer ecosystem

Open Source projects

React, Vue, Redux, Material UI, Nuxt.js, Nest.js, React Router

Publications

Dev.to, Medium, Sitepoint, CSS Tricks, Smashing Magazine, Hacker Noon

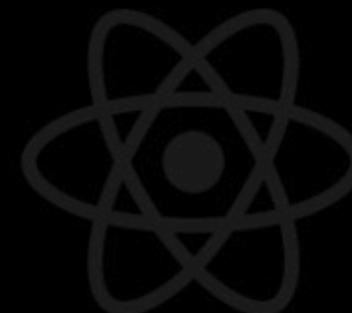

Education

Lambda School, Thinkful, FreeCodeCamp

Integrations

Vercel, Netlify, GitHub, VS Code

JS

Community and Professional

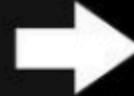

Learn

Learning new frameworks and libraries

Experimentation

Trying out ideas and building side-projects

Prototype

Building proof of concepts and internal tools

Job Interviews

Interviewing candidates with live, interactive examples

Onboarding

Onboard developers to tools and processes

Feedback

Getting feedback on code and creations from team members, clients, and other stakeholders

Making development accessible for entire teams, not just developers

A designer can view the prototype and provide quick feedback or tweak styling in the UI

A product manager can jump in and see how the spec is being implemented

Marketing can update the copy

Other developers can review code or help with implementation
